Community
School head
Tony Hartney is campaigning for Haringey schools

By Will Stone

A PETITION calling for fairer funding for Haringey schoolchildren has attracted more than 500 signatures.

Headteachers, school staff and residents in Haringey and beyond have signed the petition for A Fair Deal For Haringey Children campaign, launched by the borough's National Union of Teachers branch just two weeks ago.

The petition calls for Prime Minister Gordon Brown to increase government funding of Haringey schools by £1,000 per pupil each year to match funding in neighbouring boroughs such as Camden, Hackney and Islington.

Currently a government funding anomaly has left schools in the borough receiving about £1,000 less for each pupil every year than boroughs neighbouring Haringey.

Tony Brockman, secretary of Haringey's NUT, expects all headteachers in the borough to add their names to the campaign's leaflet in support of more funding.

Tony Hartney, headteacher at Gladesmore Community School in Crowland Road, Tottenham, who has been at the forefront of the campaign, said: "The staff of Gladesmore see the day-to-day impact of the anomaly in school funding. We receive £1,183 less per child per year than schools just two streets away. The school is 200 metres from the border with Hackney. Many of our students live in Hackney."

"We see this impact most clearly on staffing – where cost strains make it harder than it should be to deliver the personalised education our children deserve. So we would be very grateful if the government were to look into ways to address this issue ensuring that our children are given every chance to succeed."

Sharon Easton, headteacher at St

Paul's and All Hallows infants and junior school in Worcester Lane, Tottenham, points out that the school would receive £400,000 more every year if it was funded fairly.

"It seems totally unfair money for education should depend on the postcode in which a school is located," she said. "If our school was in another authority, we would be getting more than £400,000 extra a year to educate our pupils."

"We are always needing to prioritise on school improvements and buying new equipment. Our computers all need updating, the playground needs resurfacing and the school is in desperate need of renovation and decoration."

"Being able to employ another teacher would allow us to give extra time and attention to those children who really need more support."

MPs stand by expense claims as blacked-out forms go online

By Will Stone

MPS in Haringey have defended their blacked-out expenses claims.

Both David Lammy, MP for Tottenham, and Lynne Featherstone, MP for Hornsey and Wood Green, were so confident that they have nothing to hide in their expenses that they revealed them in public before they were officially released last Wednesday.

Mr Lammy claimed £25,263 for a second home between 2002 and 2004, but ended the claim after realising he did not need it and Ms Featherstone was forced to return large quantities of stationery in April 2007 after her office ordered £22,000 worth in the previous month to beat stricter rules on stationery allowances. But she claims she knew nothing about the order.

Latest figures from the past financial year in 2007/08, reveal that Mr Lammy claimed a total of £133,224 in expenses and Ms Featherstone £129,431 - among the least claims in parliament. Most related to staff wages and office costs. Ms Featherstone said that anything blacked out on her expenses is to protect the bank details of her staff and her home address.

She said: "I was not anxious to advertise my expenses, but we need to protect personal information. There has to be urgent reform in the allowances system and when there is I believe that most MPs will behave themselves in future."

She added that she has personally found the whole expenses scandal both depressing and disappointing.

Mr Lammy said: "I can understand the very real concerns of residents as they go through the pages and pages of documents online, only to find many blacked-out sections.

"These redacted areas are not there to disguise spending but rather to conform to the Data Protection Act, protecting personal details such as home addresses, phone numbers and bank details of my staff and others who have provided services to my office."

Jobcentre staff slammed for failing the unemployed

By Will Stone

A JOBSEEKER has called for the complete reorganisation of Jobcentre Plus if unemployment is to be effectively tackled during the recession.

Michael Carr, of Wood Green, was responding to an article published in the Advertiser on June 3 that revealed almost one in ten young people in the borough are on the dole.

He claims to have experienced a catalogue of poor service at his local Jobcentre Plus in Western Road, Wood Green, including job search machines not working, advisers unable to find out which employer has advertised vacancies, jobseekers being misled by staff on procedures, disorganised chaos during busy periods, pointless client reviews and generally poor customer service.

Mr Carr fears that other Jobcentres suffer from similar issues and argues it is time the government looked at the quality of services to the unemployed.

"Wood Green Jobcentre is woefully unable to offer jobseekers the support into work they need," he said. "In this time of economic crisis and rising unemployment, it operates as little more than a bureaucratic gatekeeper to the paltry benefits that unemployed people have to survive on."

"Thousands of people are desperate to find work and the quality of service that the unemployed are given is an issue that is more important now than it ever was."

Disillusioned:
Michael Carr

To improve Jobcentres, Mr Carr is calling for a review of its services to refocus on helping people to find work instead of merely "rubber-stamping" benefit claims.

He believes there should be better information about current vacancies, practical help including application forms at the Jobcentre, better management procedures for claimants, separate areas for benefit claims and employment advice, a closer relationship with high street employment agencies, improvements to customer service and quality checks.

Rose Dymond, district manager for Jobcentre Plus, said: "We know it is distressing for people who have lost their jobs."

Over the past few months we have seen an increase in the numbers, including people with professional backgrounds, using our services.

"Most people who lose their jobs only spend a short amount of time looking for work before they find a new one. More than three quarters of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance are off within six months."

"We're giving real support to unemployed people at day one and at six months to help them get back to work as quickly as possible. Employers now have access to up to £2,500 of funding in both a wage subsidy and towards training for jobseekers who have been out of work for six months."

She added that latest figures from April shows that Jobcentre Plus had nearly 5,000 vacancies across north and north-east London.

11 arrested for Aldi death

ELEVEN men have been arrested after a man was found dead behind the Aldi supermarket in High Road, Tottenham.

The man, in his forties, was found unconscious and suffering from a head injury at 9.40pm last Wednesday. He was later pronounced dead at the scene.

A man was arrested at the supermarket and another ten arrests were made at homes nearby. All eleven are held in custody.

Anyone who has information about the incident should call police on 020 8358 0100 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Baby P doctor sues hospital

THE doctor who failed to notice Baby Peter's broken spine is suing the hospital that dismissed her.

Dr Sabah Al-Zayyat, former consultant paediatrician with Great Ormond Street Hospital in Bloomsbury, is suing the hospital for damages after it terminated her contract after Baby Peter's trial.

Dr Al-Zayyat did not carry out a proper check-up on abused Baby Peter on August 1, 2007, when he came to her with a broken spine and ribcage because, he claimed, the child was "too miserable and cranky" to examine him.

Baby Peter died from his injuries two days later on August 3.

A spokeswoman for Great Ormond Street said: "We believe we acted fairly and in the interests of patients."

Thousands spill out on to the streets for Tottenham Carnival

Hats off to the designers: A colourful parade attracted more than 40,000

TENS of thousands turned out to enjoy Tottenham Carnival on Saturday.

The carnival, in its 12th year, led a procession from Eade Road at 11am and ended at Bruce Castle Park in the heart of Tottenham.

Five stages of live entertainment were later held at the park, along with a comedy tent, funfair and stalls for youths, pensioners and Tottenham Hotspur Football Club.

Nicky Price, chairman of the Tottenham Carnival, predicts that no fewer than 40,000 people attended the event as a whole.

He said: "It has been the most successful carnival for years as it was not plagued by bad weather. The atmosphere and community spirit is wonderful and attracts people in their droves."

Primary school is closed after pupil catches swine flu

A PRIMARY school in Hornsey has been closed after one pupil was diagnosed with swine flu and a number of other pupils are undergoing tests.

Campsbourne School, in Nightingale Lane, has been closed after an outbreak of the potentially fatal virus that claimed its first victim in the UK last week.

A child at the school has tested positive for the virus and a number of other possible cases are being investigated. The Health Protection Agency made the decision to close the school temporarily as a precaution to limit the spread of the virus.

Eugina Cronin, joint director of public health for NHS Haringey and Haringey Council, said: "Any pupils who may have been displaying flu-like symptoms have been advised to stay at home. We would like to remind all residents not connected to the school that unless you have flu-like symptoms or have been advised otherwise by your GP or the HPA, there is no need to stop your normal everyday activities, such as going to work or school."

"We also urge people to help prevent the spread of infection by using tissues to catch all sneezes and remembering to wash their hands regularly."

Angela Ryan, the headteacher at Campsbourne, declined to comment.

Honours list awards for dedicated work

A HARINGEY councillor is among those who have been recognised in the Queen's birthday honours.

Fiyaz Mughal, Liberal Democrat councillor for Noel Park ward, was rewarded with an OBE for 14 years of service to the voluntary sector as the director and founder of Faith Matters – a not-for-profit organisation aimed at preventing religious conflicts and extremism.

He also works as special adviser to Lib Dem leader Nick Clegg on helping to prevent radicalisation and extremism. Mr Mughal said: "I am deeply honoured and humbled to receive this award, which in the end, is a testament to the communities that have worked with me."

Other Haringey residents who were recognised in the Queen's honours list are actress Sue Johnston, from Muswell Hill, awarded an OBE for her services to drama and charity; Paul Ennals, of Highgate, and young people as the chief executive of the National Children's Bureau; deputy headteacher Barbara Hamnett, from Hornsey, who was awarded an MBE for services to education at the Jewish Free School in Brent. Gracia McGrath, chief executive of Chance UK charity based in Finsbury Park, was awarded an OBE for his services to children with special needs; and Les Bowman, from Tottenham, received a fire service medal in recognition for 23 years as a firefighter based in Dagenham.

Mr Bowman said: "It was a lovely surprise and a very proud moment when I received the call telling me I'd won the award. I didn't leave school with many qualifications, but joining the brigade has allowed me to do something worthwhile and make a difference."

One of Mr Bowman's most memorable moments was saving two children trapped in a burning house. He said: "We were wearing breathing apparatus and some of us went through a bedroom window and others through the front door."

"We managed to find the children and bring them out. I'll never forget that."

Woman hit by car on the critical list

A WOMAN is in a critical condition after a people carrier reversed into her.

Police were called to the Three Compasses pub in High Street, Hornsey, at 9.50pm on Saturday, after the woman was hit by the grey Volkswagen Sharan that was reversing in the street nearby. It is believed she was trying to cross the road when she was hit. She was rushed to hospital where she is in a critical condition.

Officers are still trying to identify her but say she is in her twenties, 5ft 5ins, slim with brown hair and of Mediterranean appearance.

The driver, a 44-year-old man, stopped at the scene and has been arrested for dangerous driving. Anyone who witnessed the incident or believes they know the victim should call Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Two jailed in fire safety breaches

TWO landlords have been sentenced to six months in prison and fined £5,000 for breaching fire safety regulations.

The prosecution followed a fire that broke out at a house in March 31, 2007, which had been converted into bedsits in Hampden Road, Hornsey. Michael de Havilland and Sally Fox, of Muswell Hill, pleaded guilty to fire safety breaches including inadequate fire alarms, a lack of emergency lighting in the stairway, and having neither fire extinguisher nor fire risk assessment. A fire brigade spokesman said: "Where we see that you are not taking your legal fire safety responsibilities seriously, we will take action."

Should our major be chosen by the residents?

RESIDENTS are being asked their views on whether Haringey should be governed by a directly elected mayor.

Haringey Council is required to review the way it is governed before the local elections in May next year. As a result, the council is seeking views on whether it should be governed by a directly elected mayor or remain as a leader and cabinet, with the exception that a new leader would be chosen every four years.

But if the directly elected mayor were the preferred option it would mean residents will elect Haringey's mayor themselves in a separate ballot. The mayor would govern the council for four years and choose their cabinet.

A public consultation on the two options will run until Friday July 10. To make your views heard, visit www.haringey.gov.uk/leadership

Shabina aims to help us all learn to live another Day

By Lucy Purdy

A HORNSEY coroner's officer has set up a new fitness class to help people avoid life-shortening diseases.

Shabina Day, 36, is based at Hornsey Coroner's Court where sudden and unexpected deaths from Haringey, Barnet and Enfield are investigated.

Her work has emphasised the importance of tackling diseases like diabetes and coronary heart conditions so she has set up a new circuit training class on Thursdays evenings at Southgate School in Cockfosters.

Shabina said: "In my job I see so many problems but, with diabetes for example, you can actually reverse it back to normal by eating properly and exercising."

"A few years ago, I was a size 18 when I started circuit training two days a week. I lost three-and-a-half stone and now I've thrown the scales away."

Shabina, a qualified fitness instructor, has worked at the coroner's court since last February and hopes people of all walks of life and fitness levels will join her classes.

Circuit training involves people visiting different stations to work the whole body with a range of different exercises.

"I think sometimes you feel uncomfortable going to the gym where everyone looks very glamorous in their lycra," she explained.

"So I'd like to see people who might be a bit shy, or perhaps are on the larger side."

"It's very social and I hope it will encourage people to get fit."

"If you have someone pushing you, you might just do a couple more sit-ups."

She also hopes the adult, pay-as-you-go classes from 6-7pm on Thursdays, may also prove an antidote to expensive gym memberships, with each session costing just £3.50. lucy.purdy@nlhnews.co.uk

Children's trust gets green light

HARINGEY is set to have its own children's trust after plans were approved by the council's cabinet.

The trust will aim to improve services for children, including health, social care and education.

Three of its priorities will be to identify children at risk of harm, improving the lives of children while narrowing the gap between education standards for vulnerable children and others, and reducing child poverty.

Lorna Reith, Haringey Council cabinet member for children and young people, said: "Setting up the trust will be an important part of improving help and support for children across the borough."

"In particular it will focus on lifting young people and their families out of poverty and keeping children safe."

£1million funding boost for playtime

HARINGEY has won more than £1million to spend on upgrading its playgrounds.

The funding, from the government's Playbuilder scheme, will help Haringey Council make over 22 new and existing playground sites over the next two years.

Dhiren Basu, Haringey Council cabinet member for leisure, said: "These improvements are not just about swings and roundabouts, but about how and where children play."

"We want children and young people to have input into the project so that we can create natural and imaginative play sites, particularly for those in the eight-to-13 age range."

"Satisfaction with play areas in Haringey is already high and the creation of new areas will further support our work to increase children's and young people's enjoyment of play."

War story hoping to get a mention

"GETTING Joe Bloggs into the theatre is a big problem," admitted George Mann. "Theatre has become quite intellectualised, something of an elite audience comes along to it, and it does scare my mum away!"

It's a dilemma George is aware of as his company, Theatre Ad Infinitum, prepare its latest work, crisply titled The War Project.

Based around the theme of war and the "human need to dominate", it first occurred to George in a dream.

"Well, more of a nightmare," said Infinitum's artistic director.

"I had to interrogate this woman but she couldn't communicate and the sky got darker and darker and bombs started to fall around us."

"I had to protect her and hide her somewhere to keep on with the questioning but a war had started."

Taking this kernel of an idea, the physical theatre company, which scored a hit at last year's Edinburgh Festival with show Behind The Mirror, have devised a piece to be performed at Jackson's Lane that George emphasises is still very much a work in progress.

Power play: Ad Infinitum's The War Project focuses on domination

"The finished product will be ready next year," said George. "But we really hope audience members at Jackson's Lane are brutally honest with us and stay around afterwards to tell us what they think."

● The War Project is being performed at Jackson's Lane in Archway Road, Highgate, tomorrow and Friday at 8pm. Tickets cost £5 on the door. For more details call the venue on 020 8341 4421.

Out and about

● A FINE time with wine is guaranteed at the Cyprus Wine Festival & Business Exhibition. Alexandra Palace. The exhibition brings together London's Cypriot community showcasing food and drink, wine tasting and family entertainment. It runs from 11am to 11pm on Saturday and 10.30am to 9pm on Sunday. Tickets cost £6 (adult), £4 (concession) and free for children. Call 020 8341 5853.

● IF the jokes are as funny as their names we're in for a good time Downstairs at the King's Head in Crouch End this Saturday. Vladimir Mctavish, Amadeus Martin and Otiz Cannelloni perform as part of the Comedy Cabaret offering, "the best in stand-up and variety". Admission is £10 (£7 concessions) and doors open at 8pm. Call 020 8340 1028.

● BRING your teddies to help Little Bo Peep find her sheep at Lauderdale House on Saturday. Chalemie presents a concert of nursery rhymes, with singing, dancing and lots of audience participation. The show is suitable for ages two to six and takes place at 10am and 11.30am. Tickets cost £4.50 (£3 concs). There is no advance booking. Doors open 30 minutes before performance. Call the Highgate venue on 020 8348 8716.

Butlers Residential Lettings provides a vibrant and exciting change to the way that ordinary people rent their properties.

Butlers Residential Lettings over the past years have catered to high net worth individuals with large property portfolios who needed niche management solutions for their properties.

A decision at Butlers Residential Lettings was made to offer this service to everyone, whether you have one property or multiple lets.

We offer a range of letting solutions to suit each prospective landlord and can tailor a solution to suit individual needs.

Our aim is simple - to provide a first class service to everyone. We hope in return to build long lasting relationships based on mutual trust, respect and commitment.

Being an independently owned company our focus is always on our Clients, making sure that they are given a truly personal, dedicated service.

At Butlers Residential Lettings, we firmly believe that communication is a vital ingredient to a successful relationship so we devote much of our time keeping our clients regularly informed of our progress. We give regular feedback on viewings and are on hand to offer as much advice and support as possible.

We have extensive links with many of the well-established marketing and media publications including 'On-line' specialist sites to ensure that your property receives the exposure YOU deserve.

Our friendly staff are trained to a high, professional standard to offer you a polite, attentive service giving you the confidence that you have placed your business with the right company.

Our commitment to you is paramount; making sure every aspect of your let is managed to the highest standard.

Butlers Residential Lettings have a large number of properties within our own personal property portfolio, so we do not under estimate the peace of mind gained when the task of letting your property is managed successfully.

A TOUGH START

By Caitlin Glennon

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR manager Harry Redknapp has stressed the importance of overcoming a tough-looking early set of fixtures and making a fast start to the new season.

The fixtures for the coming Barclays Premier League campaign were published last week, and Spurs are set to get under way with a home clash against Liverpool on August 15, while they also face matches against Manchester United and Chelsea before the end of September.

"Liverpool is a tough game but a great one to start with," said Redknapp. "They only lost two games last season, but one of those was against us at White Hart Lane, so it's a match we can look forward to."

The manager is determined to avoid a repeat of the dreadful start Spurs made to last season, which saw them languishing at the foot of the table when he took charge.

He added: "It's a tough start, but we're a good side and we can look forward to playing these games."

"Getting a good start is always important because it then carries you through the season. We need a good start and there is no reason why we shouldn't do that."

Tottenham will make the short trip to bitter rivals Arsenal on October 31, with the return match set to take place on April 10 – part of a tough run-in which the sees the side facing Chelsea and Manchester United.

Meanwhile, Roman Pavlyuchenko's agent has revealed that he is looking for a new club for the striker.

The Russian international moved to White Hart Lane last summer, but struggled to maintain his place in the side after Jermain Defoe and Robbie Keane returned to the club in January.

"I am busy with the search for a new club for Roman," said agent Oleg Artemov, who claimed that German side Stuttgart had confirmed their interest in the player.

And a summer exit from Spurs still seems imminent for midfielder Didier Zokora, even though a much-touted move to Seville appears to have fallen through.

"The distance between what they asked and what we are willing to offer is so great that we left it there," said Seville president José Maria del Nido, who added that the two clubs may speak again about the 28-year-old.

Birmingham City and Sunderland are also believed to be interested in the Ivory Coast international, but Zokora is thought to favour a move abroad.

Beginning with a bang: Harry Redknapp is looking to pick up early points

Win gives a boost to promotion bid

NORTH MIDDLESEX climbed back into the promotion places in Division Two of the Middlesex County Cricket League on Saturday courtesy of a comfortable 65-run win at home to Uxbridge.

Jason Sempar (57), Nick Brand (52) and Evan Flowers (40) were the main contributors as the hosts amassed 219 batting first, with Ryan Connor taking 5-78. Tony Stephens' 54 could not prevent Uxbridge from being dismissed for just 154 in reply.

Flowers led the way with 3-43, but Will Wootton (2-27), Ben Honour (2-11) and Semper (2-43) also enjoyed good afternoons with the ball.

However, North London's difficult season continued as they slumped to a crushing 178-run loss at fellow strugglers Harrow to remain rooted to the foot of the table.

Excellent contributions from Wasim Aslam (88) and Luke Quinliven (80) enabled Harrow to declare on 272-7 and Avi Karia then took 4-19 as North London were bowled out for a paltry 94.

Third division action saw Ian Gregory producing a stunning bowling display as Hornsey beat Ickenham by 38 runs to retain their ten-point lead at the top of the table.

After visiting Hornsey had declared on 184-9, Gregory returned the astonishing figures of 9-28 to virtually seal victory single-handedly as the hosts were dismissed for 146.

But Highgate suffered a disappointing afternoon as they were beaten by 92 runs at Harrow Town.

The hosts made 223 batting first, and Highgate slumped to 131 all out in reply, despite 55 from Leigh Wooldridge.

North London are at home to Southgate on Saturday, while North Middlesex visit Brentham, Hornsey entertain Kenton and Highgate host Wycombe House.
